

NEWS LETTER NO 10

UPDATE 9/6/2013 Jersey

We tried to hire a decent scooter here in Jersey, but no luck. All we could get was either a 50cc single person put – put or a Harley Davison at £125.00 for the day. So we went out on the bikes to the far side of the Island to a nature reserve with lots of orchids. The bay there is called St Ouens bay its about 4 miles of flat sand.

This week end is the Jersey spring show so off we went to mix with the locals.

All the girls were there

But my favourite was the Liberation brewery tent

House prices in Jersey are out of this world. The television was saying the average cost of a house is £460,000. Young ordinary people don't stand a chance of buying a house the worst value for money I saw was this semi-detached.

ADVENTURE BEFORE DEMENTIA

We get the ferry tomorrow night for a overnight to Portsmouth, then on to the new forest. Would we come back to Jersey ? I don't think so. Cornwall North Devon and Brittany all in my opinion have more to offer than Jersey. It does not seem to know what it is, a tourist resort, a financial and commercial centre or just a hide away for the very rich (who cant afford Monaco)

Now Guernsey on the other hand is great. They cater for tourist's and the Island has a homely and friendly feel about it. They have made the coast accessible to everyone with great foot paths and bike tracks. All the buildings and houses have a stile which is warm and cosy (a strange way to describe them but that's how they feel). We would like to return to enjoy Guernsey again.

Last letter I was having so much trouble getting the photos to stay where I wanted them. (they kept moving after I had placed them on a page and saved) That I forget to send a quote well here it is.

*I distrust camels.
and anyone else who can go a week without a drink*

*Men are like wine, some turn to vinegar,
But the best improve with age.*
