

NEWS LETTER NO 3

Update 17/4/2013 Herne, Kent.

Braggs Lane Farm Caravan and Camp site, has a very clean shower block, a nice hard standing pitch, well cut grass, pruned hedges, and pleasant owners. But the best thing about the site is WE ARE THE ONLY ONES ON IT.

Herne Bay and whitstable on the North Kent coast are 2 places we have not been before. So we took to the bikes and off we went. Herne Bay is ok a bit like Mablethorpe. But on the other hand Whitstable is very nice. It has a working harbour a lot of Artisan shops and old fisherman's huts converted into upmarket holiday flats all with a great atmosphere.

My Kindle E reader.

Dislike Of The Day

Lying in bed reading your Kindle, it's a good book and you are at a exciting bit and a sign pops up "BATTERY LOW".

Update 19/4/2013 Woodchurch North East Kent

We walked into Margate I took my camera and didn't take any photos "THAT DESCRIBES MARGATE".

Update 20/4/2013 Woodchurch

The Isle of Thanet (is not a island) is the north east corner of Kent comprising of Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate.

We have already spoken about Margate but the worst thing is the only new building in town. "The Turner Contemporary Gallery". It is the worst case of bad and out of place architecture I have ever seen and it cost £17,000,000

ADVENTURE BEFORE DEMENTIA

Broadstairs is nice vibrant with character Charles Dickens used to visit it, so all the pubs and cafés have a Dickens Theme name, Bleak House is in the centre of the pic.

Ramsgate is ok a working town with a marina and a not very busy ferry terminal.

Quote of the day

Sorry sausage I know I didn't like you much, but you didn't have to go down there. (bless I think she is getting to much sea air)

Summary

This corner of Kent I think I expected more, but the only place we would come again to is Whitstable. The best thing on this coast is the Viking coastal trail (national cycle route 15) This goes all the way round the coast using the prom where possible we a 10 mile section at Herne Bay and a 15 section round Ramsgate.

What would we do without Electricity
