

Adventure before Dementia

The scribbles of an aged couple who are enjoying the best times of their life.

Update 13/8/2015 Bristol.

St Bees.

Is where my sister and half her family live, Situated on the Irish Sea behind the lake district, between Seller-field and Whitehaven It is a quiet coastal village mainly known for it being the start of the coast to coast walk, with its new plaque to Wainwright.

Dislike of the day.

The relentless wind that broke a weld on one of the adjusting brackets on our windbreak.

Like of the day.

My sisters cheese scones, and my nieces husband Phil who repaired my broken part and even painted it. Also he took me on a private tour of the St Bees lifeboat station where he is a volunteer mechanic.

The Cotswold's.

The river Severn in the distance, we stayed in a small camp-site somewhere in this picture.

Camper Bit.

The site we stayed on in the cotswolds was a Certified Location, these are for Caravan Club members only. They are a 5 van site, this means they do not require planning permission, they are often at farms or in a paddock or even in large gardens. Most of them have electric hook ups, water and drainage and some even a wc and shower. The benefit being they are a lot cheaper than ordinary sites, the down side is they are normally down some very small country lane, the one we stayed at in the Cotswold's was in a farm paddock

Each pitch was hard standing.

Bristol.

The caravan club site “Baltic Warfe” is one of our favourite sites. It is situated on the floating harbour in the centre of Bristol. You come out of this door from the site.

And what you see is this

2 mile of harbour with ferry's, sailing boats, floating restaurants, bars museums, and the SS Great Britain.

Clifton and its famous bridge is only a mile away.

Money making Idea.

I thought I could let out the awning as an office.

As you can see Mark spent a couple of great days with us.

Question

What do you get when you cross a zebra with a sheep?

An unusual model in the national trust gardens at Newark Park near Stroud.
